The comedy will follow RuPaul as Ruby Red, a bigger-than-life but down-on-her-luck drag queen who travels across America from club to club in a rundown 1990s RV with her unlikely sidekick, AJ, a recently orphaned, tough-talking, scrappy 11-year-old stowaway. As these two misfits, one tall, one small, travel from city to city, Ruby's message of love and acceptance winds up touching people and changing their lives for the better. Oh, and RuPaul performs a killer musical number in every drag club. (October 15 - May 2)

A seasonal anthology series that tells startling, stranger-than-fiction true crime stories. Each season will tell the story of a crime too bizarre to be believed, except it really happened. Our stories will take place in the overlooked parts of America. Places where people feel trapped & desperate - cheated out of the American dream. & those feelings lead them to commit one-of-a-kind crimes. That was the case for Gypsy Rose Blanchard. Gypsy is now serving 10 years for the murder of Dee Dee Blanchard, her mother, who convinced Gypsy and the world that Gypsy was ill with various diseases, including muscular dystrophy & cancer, when she was actually a healthy child. Young Chicago native, Don Cornelius, arrives in Los Angeles, CA. with a dream and determination. His creation of the dance show, Soul Train, would become destination television for Black youth in the 1970s. His vision to showcase young people dancing and celebrating up & coming R&B artists of the day would come to fruition and live on to become the longest running, nationally syndicated dance show in television history. But not without hard work, enthusiastic young talent & a bit of the street's darker side creeping in along the way. (September 17 - December 31)

STATUS: September 17 LOCATION: Wethersfield, Connecticut
PRODUCER: Danielle von Zerneck - Erica Joseph-Hunter (erica.hunter@sbcglobal.net) WRITER: Caitlin Fryers
DIRECTOR: Maggie Greenwald PM: Gregory White 1AD: Mark Greene CAST: Alicia Witt - Colin Ferguson
Big city attorney Emma, who has just been promoted to her dream partnership, spends Christmas in her picturesque home town to help close down her parents' house -- & also to help her siblings Daniel and Andie cope with the grief of their parents' recent loss. Memories flood in that are hard for Emma to handle, & the fact that she's just broken up with her long-time boyfriend Ian worsen her sense of loss. After discovering a parcel of mysterious love letters in her mother's antique desk, Emma teams with handsome history professor-turned-antiques dealer Morgan to discover who the deceased woman's long-ago admirer really was. As they trace the mystery to its intensely romantic conclusion, Morgan & Emma begin falling hard for one another -- but the unexpected arrival of Ian, who is determined to win Emma back, puts the brakes on their own unfolding romance. Cursed is a re-imagining of the Arthurian legend, told through the eyes of Nimue, a teenage heroine with a mysterious gift who is destined to become the powerful (and tragic) Lady of the Lake. After her mother's death, she finds an unexpected partner in Arthur, a young mercenary, in a quest to find Merlin and deliver an ancient sword. Over the course of her journey, Nimue will become a symbol of courage and rebellion against the terrifying Red Paladins, and their complicit King Uther.

Set in New York and Spain in 1973, the story is told through the eyes of James (Dillane), a young gallery assistant who helps Dalí prepare for a big show. While James hopes to learn some of the secrets of great art from one of the 20th century's greatest painters, he instead falls down a rabbit hole of glittering parties, personal battles, and an art world awash with money and drama. Manville will play Dalí's domineering wife, and Roth the painter's right-hand man.

A sequel to Stephen King's The Shining, that picks up the life of the Redrum kid Danny Torrance when he is in his 40s and struggling with the same demons of anger and alcoholism that plagued his father. The story begins as Torrance carries the trauma of the Overlook Hotel into adulthood. He's become a reflection of his murderous father, with lingering rage and a drinking problem that dulls his pain as well as his "shining" powers. Those powers return when he embraces sobriety and uses his gift to help the dying at a hospice. He establishes a psychic connection with a young girl who shares his extreme abilities, and who is being targeted by a scary group with the similar abilities. They've found that their powers grow if they inhale the "steam" that comes off others with the power to shine, when they are suffering painful deaths. The troubles begin when stewardship of Arrakis is transferred by the Emperor from the Harkonnen Noble House to House Atreides. The Harkonnens don't want to give up their privilege, though, and through sabotage and treachery they cast young Duke Paul Atreides out into the planet's harsh environment to die. There he falls in with the Fremen, a tribe of desert dwellers who become the basis of the army with which he will reclaim what's rightfully his. Paul Atreides, though, is far more than just a usurped duke. He might be the end product of a very long-term genetic experiment designed to breed a super human; he might be a messiah. His struggle is at the center of a nexus of powerful people and events, and the repercussions will be felt throughout the Imperium.

Set primarily in New York City, Denver, and Europe, Fencer plunges us into the heart and mind of Mae Wilson, a determined female athlete struggling with a life devoted to the peculiar and intense world of US fencing, and explores the loneliness of someone trying to achieve greatness in a sport that offers no chance for fame or fortune. The film is about the anxieties of competition and what one must give up in order to be a high-level athlete. Everything Mae does - from achieving to drinking to physical intimacy - is motivated unconsciously by a desire to alleviate her pain and discomfort and feel okay about herself. Desperate for the affection and approval of her absent parents, Mae throws her self into sport to prove she is enough, and inevitably transfers her approval seeking to her coach and others. At its heart the film raises the question of why people compete, and explores the deleterious effect of getting one's sense of worth and self esteem solely through achievement.

The comedy, based on the popular 1996 film which starred Diane Keaton, Bette Midler and Goldie Hawn, the series will be based in New York City. It follows three women, Ari, Bree (Buteau) and Hazel (Scott) who band together after their marriages fall apart, and who find strength in their sisterhood--and of course a little revenge. Scott's Hazel is a gorgeous music superstar who has faded from the limelight and lost the confidence she once had. She has a raw talent and a killer voice that's been silenced by her husband/manager Sean for years. When she realizes that he's been unfaithful in both business and marriage, she is ready to wreak havoc and assert her artistic identity. Buteau's Bree is an overwhelmed mom and doctor who hasn't let loose in years. She is fiercely loyal and committed, so when her husband cheats on her, she is deeply betrayed and not ready to forgive. With the help of Hazel and Ari, she learns to harness her sexual energy and break out of her shell. (October 1 - December 14)

Driving cross-country, Ray and his wife and daughter stop at a highway rest area where his daughter falls and breaks her arm. After a frantic rush to the hospital and a clash with the check-in nurse, Ray is finally able to get her to a doctor. While the wife and daughter go downstairs for an MRI, Ray, exhausted, passes out in a chair in the lobby. Upon waking up, they have no record or knowledge of Ray's family ever being checked in. Godfather of Harlem tells the true story of crime boss Bumpy Johnson (Whitaker), who in the early 1960s returned after 10 years in prison to find the neighborhood he once ruled in shambles. With the streets controlled by the Italian mob, Bumpy takes on the Genovese crime family to regain control. During the brutal battle, he forms an alliance with radical preacher Malcolm X — catching his political rise in the crosshairs of social upheaval and a mob war that threatens to tear the city apart. The series is described as a collision of the criminal underworld and the civil rights movement during one of the most tumultuous times in American history. D'Onofrio will take on the role of Vincent "Chin" Gigante, a former professional boxer, who is considered dimwitted and who works his way from enforcer/hitman to top boss of the Genovese crime family. He feigns a low IQ and even insanity to confound his rivals and avoid prosecution, but it's all a cover for a razor-sharp criminal mind. He's "new generation" Mafia, entirely comfortable with peddling drugs. Like his nemesis Bumpy Johnson, his Achilles heel is his troubled, rebellious young daughter. (September 12 - February 13)

A contemporary take on the current issues facing both students and administrators in the world of higher education. Yara Shahidi portrays Zoey - Dre (Anthony Anderson) and Rainbow's (Tracee Ellis Ross) popular, entitled, stylish and socially active 17-year-old daughter - as she heads off to college and quickly discovers that not everything goes her way once she leaves the nest. Yara is joined by "black-ish"'s Deon Cole (Charlie) who portrays Charlie, Dre's eccentric and unpredictable co-worker at Stevens & Lido. Zoey runs into Charlie during college orientation where she learns that he moonlights as an adjunct marketing professor. Arlook will portray Miriam, a freshman know-it-all at Southern California University with a no-holds-barred attitude. Parnell will portray the dean of Southern California University, and Jackson will portray a socially conscious sophomore at Southern California University. (September 17 - February 25)

The movie is expected to chart the formative years of Di Marzio who survived a deadly earthquake as an infant and goes on to become a feared mob hitman and mentor to mob kingpin Gennaro Savastano. For my money, the ruthless but tortured assassin is one of the most compelling small screen characters of recent years.

The end-of-the-world, 2085-set drama, unfolds against the backdrop of a near-future world devastated by ecological disasters and conflicts, where there have been no human births in over a decade. A handful of survivors respond to a mysterious call to meet up in Athens. The feature's narrator Jo, a 17-year-old boy of African origin, brings with him a treasure trove of film reels, all bearing the inscription "Cineteca di Bologna". The group revisits the final chapters of mankind's existence on earth, while Jo becomes its "last moviemaker" as he captures these last members of the human race as it approaches extinction. Nolte co-stars as an elderly man who becomes close to Jo while Rampling will play a mysterious and sensuous Baltic woman called Baltk.

This sexy psychological drama follows the dual journeys of two strangers destined to change the other's life. Roberta is the beautiful but abused mistress of an upscale Florida drug courier (Ramon) traveling westward toward Reno with a cache of cocaine. Meanwhile, Bobby, a middle-aged, homeless war vet and recovering cocaine addict, heads eastward on the same lonely interstate, in pursuit of a long-expired job opportunity in Omaha. Trapped by a fateful and vicious blizzard at an isolated motel-truck stop, Roberta accepts the unconditional kindness of the mysteriously dispirited Bobby, who befriends her by sharing his sparse room while they are stranded over Christmas.

 Vikander will play Helena Petteirer, who on the surface leads an ideal life with a great husband and a young daughter. She keeps secret her shocking backstory: her mother was kidnapped as a teen, and she was the product of the relationship between captive and tormentor. She lives for 12 years in a life carefully controlled by her kidnapper/father, until he was caught and sent to prison. An escape that leaves two prison guards dead forces her to confront her secret history and she becomes determined to bring down her father, who gave her all the tools she will need. He is the one called the Marsh King, the man who kept a woman and her young daughter captive in the wilderness for years. Sensing the danger this monster poses for her husband and young daughter, she vows to hunt him down. (December - February)

 The film is inspired by the true story of one of the greatest generals of his time, the undefeated John Zizka of Trocnov, who became a legend because of his actions. Europe at the end of the 14th century. Everything that Charles IV, Roman Emperor and Czech King, has built is falling apart. The foundations of centuries-old orders are shaking. The Emperor's first-born son and successor, Wenceslas IV, is too weak a monarch for such a time. Two popes are struggling for power over the Church, the German nobility have been fighting with each other and the Czech nobility is only worried about itself. Avarice and the right of the stronger have prevailed. A major magnate in the country, Henry of Rosenberg, gains control of the courts of the free squires one after another. Yet one of them stands up to confront him, and his name is John Zizka. For many years, Zizka was a hired knight who fought for the interests of others. He is a member of king's brother's guards, a knight and a future chieftain of the Hussite troops. Now he will use all of his acquired experience and he will fight for himself, for his rights and for revenge - he does not want to, and cannot come to terms with the seeming impunity of the magnate upon whose order almost all of the members of his family were murdered.

 We follow the lives and work of veteran CIA operative Wayne Addison and his newly recruited case officer, Isa Alfaro, as they engage in espionage in Mexico City. They'll perform an illegal, off the books operation aimed at finding and killing Rafael Bautista, Mexico's most secretive and vicious cartel leader. Their investigation will bring them into direct conflict with Eduardo "Lalo" Yzaguirre, the beloved and powerful young Mayor of Mexico City – who also shares a past with Isa. The series will explore the intersection of spycraft, politics, and drug trafficking in one of the most vibrant cities in the world, exposing both the beauty and rich history of the city, as well as the darkness of its political corruption and organized crime.  Set in the late 1920's, Miss Fisher & the Crypt of Tears honors the heightened exoticisms of the murder mystery genre. The Honorable Miss Phryne Fisher, lady detective, escapes the small screen and takes off on a global adventure - via romantic wayside stops in the Far East, glamorous sojourns in the mansions of London, and battles to survive the rolling sands of the Arabian Desert long enough to find the missing treasure, solve numerous murders and break all aviation records before she wings her way home again! The film opens with the Honorable Miss Phryne Fisher joining Lord and Lady Lofthouse, for the London 'season' where she meets Shirin Abbas, a young Palestinian woman desperate for her help to solve a mystery. All it takes is one whiff of intrigue and the opportunity to right a wrong for Phryne to be off on an adventure to the biblical city of Jerusalem, to discover the truth about an ancient crypt rumored to lie somewhere beneath the sands of the Negev Desert. James and Katie Shaw meet at her apartment to sign the final paperwork enacting their divorce. Suddenly a flash of white light and a deafening explosion literally rock their world and disable all of their technological devices. Electricity, phones, cars...all unusable. Slowly realizing that they are on the outskirts of a nuclear missile strike, the two determine that staying in the shelter of the damaged but livable apartment is the only possible way to survive the nuclear fallout. Amidst the stress of trying to survive until help arrives, the two allow the problems from their marriage to re-surface. To add to their strife, an ex-convict, now looter, named Artemis breaks in and holds them at gunpoint. The tables turn and they overtake Artemis, only to realize that he is actually a fragile man, dying of radiation poisoning. Now with another mouth to feed and radiation sickness imminent for all of them, James and Katie attempt to reconcile with each other as the situation proves to be inevitably more deadly by the hour as they wait for rescue.

It's the summer of 1968 & three young African American girls, raised in a strict but loving home by their father and grandmother in New York, are sent away for a month to live with their mother Nzila in Oakland California. Nzila is a firebrand poet who has rejected Motherhood, for the Cause. It's a coming-of-age summer, especially for 11 year old Delphine, who, for the first time in her life, is exposed to revelations about her Mother, & a quickly changing world.

It's the '90s Pacific Northwest refracted through a dark mirror, where meth and madness hash it out in the woods. A band of hobo vampire junkies roam the blighted landscape—trashing supermarket breakrooms, praying to the altar of Poison Idea and GG Allin at basement rock shows, crashing senior center pancake breakfasts—locked in the thrall of Robitussin trips and their own wild dreams. A girl with drug-induced ESP and an eerie connection to Patty Reed (a young member of the Donner Party who credited her survival to her relationship with a hidden wooden doll), searches for her disappeared foster sister along "The Highway That Eats People," stalked by a conflation of Twin Peaks' "Bob" and the Green River Killer, known as Dactyl.

In his 30s, Eddie Palmer returns to his small-town home in Georgia after serving a long prison sentence for armed robbery and attempted manslaughter. Left with no option but to move in with his grandmother Vivian, Palmer finds himself virtually unemployable, and talks his way into a small-potatoes gig as an assistant school janitor. After years of incarceration, Palmer's become a taciturn man who keeps other people at arm's length. But when Vivian assigns him to look after 7 year old Sam, who lives next door and whose junkie mother regularly wanders off, Palmer is forced to take on a serious responsibility, perhaps for the first time in his life, and finds himself surprised and humbled by the joy of caring for and loving a dependent child. Down deep in the Mississippi Delta lies the Pink Pony, an oasis of grit and glitter in a rough patch of human existence where beauty can be hard to find. Pussy Valley, a southern-fried, hour-long drama from award-winning playwright Katori Hall tells the kaleidoscopic story of this little-strip-club-that-could and the big characters who come through its doors—the hopeful, the lost, the broken, the ballers, the beautiful, and the damned. Trap music meets film noir in this lyrical and atmospheric series that dares to ask what happens when small-town folk dare to dream beyond the boundaries of the Piggly Wiggly and the pawn shop.

Set in 1968, at the peak of Dusty Springfield's popularity, So Much Love will follow the singer's journey to Memphis, Tenn., to record her career-defining record, Dusty in Memphis, which was inducted into the Grammy Hall of Fame in 2001. As she navigates her way through the politics of both the recording studio and the city, what she sees, hears and experiences there draws her back to key moments in her life and artistic development — including her destiny-altering encounter with the music of Motown, her stand against Apartheid policies during her aborted South African tour, and her thorny brushes with men in the music industry who were intimidated by both her talent and her insistence on moulding perfect performances rather than settling for good ones. (Set to shoot in the U.S. and the U.K. in spring 2019.)

An upstart documentarian builds his success on the death of one of his subjects and faces the consequences. Philip Waterhouse is losing it. Two years after filming the brutal death of a fourteen year-old kid for a gritty documentary about gang violence, he is finally getting the recognition he's always hoped for. But he's also getting a lot of criticism. From the press, from his friends, and worst of all, from Leslie Barnes, the mother of the victim. When Leslie begins to video-stalk Philip, he has no choice but to confront both her and the possibility that he may be more culpable than he's been willing to admit.

In a last effort to lure Zoey, Josh engineers a road trip to the hot Battlefest music festival, along with his best friend Mikey, Mikey's older brother Donnie, and Josh's neighbor & long-time friend Molly. Josh is delighted when Zoey tags along on their adventure, but the fact that he doesn't actually have tickets to the sold-out festival is just the crowning crimp in a series of comical misadventures. But just as Zoey finally seems to be taking an interest in him, the most disastrous mishap of all is Josh's dawning realization that Molly has been his soul mate all along -- an insight that may come a bit too late to salvage their relationship. In the late 1950s, Bernard Garrett is a financial genius with a bottomless knowledge of the real estate business -- only he's black, & his financial rise is repeatedly blocked by the unwillingness of many whites to "do business with a Negro." After he acquires African-American nightclub owner Joe Morris as a business partner & Caucasian Matt Steiner as a "front," Bernard's fortunes begin to rise and rise. But when he attempts to buy a pair of banks in rural Texas, & word trickles out that his banks are owned by two black men, Bernard isn't facing a glass ceiling any longer -- he's facing a solid brick wall, & it's a matter of time before he's facing jail time -- partly for shifty dealmaking, but mostly for his sheer effrontery & his naked ambition to cut himself a fat slice of the American dream. 14 year old Dallas McCarthy is a talented pool hustler, just like his father Cal. And just like Cal, he's headed on a downward spiral towards a wasted life, despite the best efforts of his hard-working mother Gina to keep him on a straight and narrow path. When Cal finally calls it quits on his family and takes off for good, Dallas hops on his bicycle and goes after him, leaving Gina in a state of panic and anxiety. But Dallas finds a roadside angel of sorts in Joe Haley, an itinerant loner who reluctantly takes Dallas under his wing, saving him from his own bad judgement and a number of sticky situations. A regretful father who abandoned his own son 17 years ago, Joe becomes a protective surrogate father of sorts to the troubled Dallas in a cross-country odyssey that, despite passages of danger and crushing disillusionment, will prove transformative and ultimately uplifting for them both.
